ABSTRACT

PROFILE of ACUTE PHARYNGITIS at DEPARTMENT of ENT in MEDICAL FACULTY of AIRLANGGA UNIVERSITY RSUD DR. SOETOMO JANUARY-DECEMBER 2015

Background: Acute Pharyngitis is an infection in the pharynx that caused by viruses or bacteria, characterized by the presence of pain in the throat, fever, enlargement of the lymph nodes the neck and malaise. Among the many infections, the most common is group a β-hemolytic streptococcus (Streptococcus pyogenes). The purpose of the research is to identify demographic profile of profile of acute pharyngitis patients in RSUD dr. Soetomo January – December 2015.

Method: This research design is cross-sectional. Research samples are patients with acute pharyngitis in RSUD dr. Soetomo January – December 2015. That observed gender, age, last education, and work.

Results: There are 255 samples of acute pharyngitis in the ENT Department RSUD dr. Soetomo January – December 2015. Acute pharyngitis was more common in females (60%) than males (40%) with the peak incidence at 50-59 years old (20,4%). High school was the most common last education in patients with the percentage of 54%. Private employees was the most common job in patients with the percentage of 31%.

Conclusion: Acute Pharyngitis were mostly happened to females with the peak incidence at 50-59 years old. The most common last education in patients was high school and the most common job was private employees.

Keywords: acute pharyngitis, profile of acute pharyngitis, gender in acute pharyngitis, age in acute pharyngitis, education in acute pharyngitis, job in acute pharyngitis