Dear Prof Mas Rahmah,

I hope this e-mail finds you well. I am writing to you on behalf of Professors Julien CHAISSE and Kelvin LOW because the Asia Pacific Law Review has received the attached manuscript entitled "Characteristics of SPV of China's First Two Products of the Intellectual Property Securitization".

As you may know, the journal is published by Taylor & Francis and is indexed on both SCOPUS and SSCI. While established in 1992, we recently embarked on an exciting journey to rebrand and promote the journal with the objective to make it the prime English language medium for publication of high-quality manuscripts in the field of Asia Pacific legal studies.

Based on a preliminary review of the article, the Editors-in-Chief have determined that a peer review would be appropriate for us in determining whether to publish the manuscript. We were hoping that you would be able to assist us in this regard.

If you are indeed able to review the manuscript, we would be grateful to receive your comments (favorable and/or unfavorable), as well as your publishing recommendation, within 3 weeks from today's date. In writing your review in the attached form, please avoid including any information in the review that would identify yourself (all reviews are sent with the reviewer's name removed).

If your schedule may demand somewhat more time than that, please let me know, as we will seek to manage the author's expectations accordingly. If you are unable to review the manuscript at this time, or if you have a conflict of interest or other consideration of which we should be aware, please notify us immediately and we will make alternative arrangements. Once we receive your comments, we would plan to forward your feedback and suggestions for revision (if any) to the author(s) of the manuscript on a strictly anonymous basis. Please be assured that your anonymity in this respect will be safeguarded.

As you undoubtedly know, reviewers provide a tremendous service to the editor, the author, and the larger scholarly community. Your comments will assist us in making a decision and will assist the author(s) in revising and improving the manuscript. As a token, we will offer HKD 500 remuneration for your service.

Thank you very much for your continuing contribution to the Asia Pacific Law Review.

Warm regards,

Ms Lala WONG
