First and foremost, I would like to express my deepest praises and gratitude toward God, the Almighty, who gives me great health, strength, ability, and opportunity every day and to whom I always go back. Without His blessings, this achievement would not have been possible. I would also thank to my family and friends who have supported me so far. Every love you give would be given back by God.

I would also like to express my gratitude to all the lecturers at the English Department Faculty of Humanities Universitas Airlangga for sharing all their knowledge. I am sincerely grateful for being the one who learn from him with all the knowledge that also motivates me to reach more and more deeply consequences of the given ideas.

For my beloved parents, these words are not enough to represent by gratitude for having them. Without their endless support, I would not have done this paper. They are my inspirations, motivations and strength to keep always going. They are the best gift in my life ever. God may bless them with health and happiness.

For the ones who always help me anytime, Wahyu Kstatria and Andar, I am always grateful for having them as my best friends who always have time for me who is so complicated and helpless. Last but not least, I would like to thank the one who always cheers me up in my difficult time, Ni'matus Sholihah. For the ones who I have not mentioned, I am always grateful for them to accept who I am with all my imperfections.
