Hello dear Prof. Miftahussurur ,

We have started editing the fourth issue with articles on covid-19 issues. Edited by the authors - Adriana DN, Miftahussurur M. "Current Strategy to Combat COVID-19 in Indonesia". references and in the references in the text.

I tried to correct the list of references according to our requirements, taking into account the fact that many sources are not standard literature, they are rather urgent guidelines for coronavirus. In order for these sources to help our readers too, we decided without fail, if the sources do not have a DOI, indicate the source at the site address. I have already made

The second problem concerns the presentation of sources. Many of them are presented in Indonesian. In the terms of our magazine it is indicated that all non-English-language sou

Making a list of references,

If the article is not published in English, all the information about the article must be translated in English.

1. Write the transliterated surnames and initials of the authors in Latin letters.
  2. The translated title must be enclosed in square brackets, followed by a space.
  3. The source language is written in square brackets.
  4. If the journal has an international name in English, then specify this name.
- If the magazine does not have an international name, then specify the name of the magazine in the transliterated version.

For example: Yankovska LV, Snezhytska VO, Povorozniuk VV, Woodman SD [Choice of antibacterial therapy during community-acquired pneumonia] [Published in Italian]. It. Med. J

Dear Authors!

In connection with the requirements of the printing house, the editorial office was forced to partially change the layout of the issue.

We apologize and send you the final version of the number that has been sent to print.

We also inform you that the revised version has been posted on the YSMU website.

Best regards, Editorial Board
