The image shows two screenshots of a Gmail email interface. The top screenshot displays the start of an email from Prof. Lee, Jung Wan (jwlee119@yahoo.com) dated 14 Aug 2020 18:57. The email is addressed to the user and is in Indonesian. The content of the email includes a greeting, a thank you for submitting a research article to the Journal of Asian Finance, Economics and Business (JAFEB), and a rejection of the manuscript. The rejection is based on the editorial board's assessment that the current manuscript does not meet the journal's standards and submission guidelines. The email also includes the journal's Editorial Board and Selection Policy, which states that the board is very selective and accepts articles based on scholarly merit, research significance, research integrity, and compliance with APA style guidelines, without considering race, ethnicity, nationality, citizenship, financial means, or narrow frames of reference. Additionally, it mentions the Article Publication Charge (APC), noting that JAFEB is an Open Access journal but that the publication process involves costs for setup, maintenance, and peer-review.

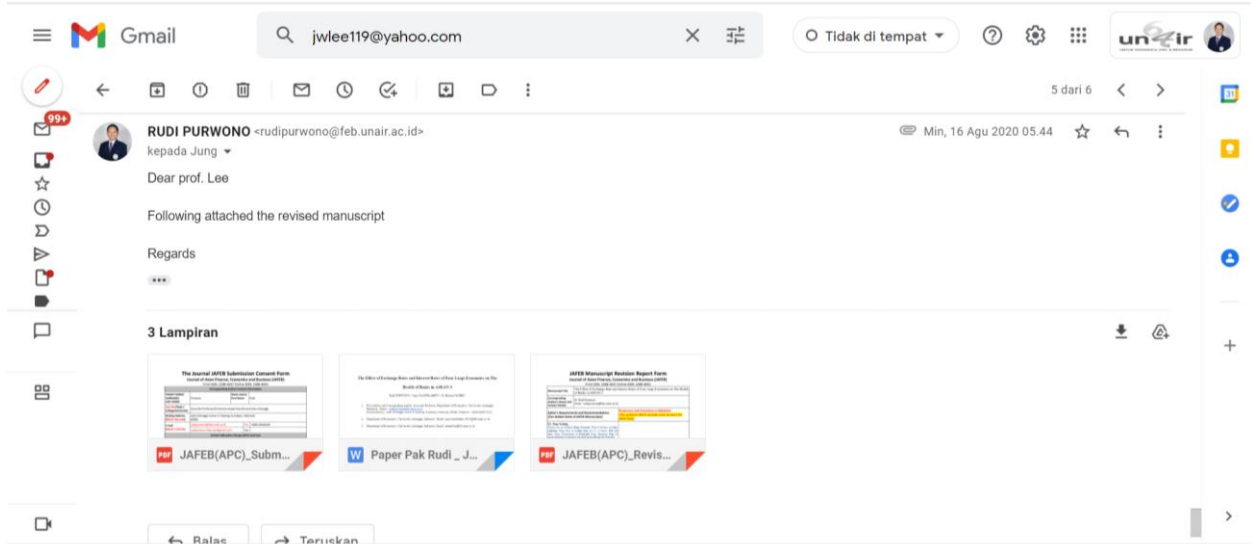

The bottom screenshot shows a section of the email titled Checklist of Manuscript and Submission (Very Important Items). It lists three key requirements for authors:

- JAFEB Engagement: The literature must be current, relevant, and broad enough to set the context for the research. Authors should engage with the style and discussions published in JAFEB. The work should be considered as you can see on the JAFEB Archive. To fully contribute to the subject, you will need to engage with JAFEB. To do so, you should include at least 3 - 5 recent and relevant references in JAFEB. Your paper should reflect the cutting edge thinking of relevant literature in JAFEB. If the manuscript does not include at least THREE citations/references from JAFEB, the manuscript would be stopped/rejected by the Desk Editor without further review.
- Self-Citation Restriction Policy: The self-citation refers to when an author refers to their previous works written by them alone or in co-authorship and cites them. Self-citations are used to compare current results with earlier findings when continuing to study the same subject. It seems that the only reasonable solution for the issues of self-plagiarism, research integrity, and originality is to limit the amount of self-citations. JAFEB's Self-Citation Restriction Policy regulates that the self-citation level should not exceed 10% for authors and 20% for co-authors together and 15% for JAFEB. Please rewrite and remove any outnumbered self-citations, if any corrections required in your case. If the reference checker (software) finds that the author(s) break the rules, then the manuscript will be automatically rejected by the Desk Editor without further review.
- Abstract: Abstracts must adhere to the following: A concise and factual abstract is required. Please rewrite abstract to reach about 200 words in total for this purpose from current 153 words in your case. The abstract should describe the following items in order of: 1) the purpose of the research (The study aims to investigate...), 2) data, materials, and methodology (This study employs samples/survey data/time series data of ....), 3) the results (The results show/reveal that ....), and 4) major findings (The findings of this study suggest that ..., in an unstructured manner. An abstract is often presented separately from the article, so it must be able to stand alone. If the word counter (software) finds more than 5% deviation, the manuscript would be stopped/rejected by the Desk Editor without further review.
