ABSTRACT

This article focuses on presenting a two-year panel data set of Islamic microfinance institutions' (MFIs) clients in Indonesia. The clients are divided into three groups: clients receiving profit and loss sharing (PLS) finance, receiving non-PLS finance and those receiving finance by both mechanisms. Data obtained from 289 Indonesian Islamic MFIs clients contain the clients' financing characteristics. The chi-square (χ^2) inferential statistics model was used in the data analysis. The data show that total finance approved, the duration of the financing application process, the financing duration, and savings in Islamic MFIs is associated with the three groups.

1. Data description

This data used a structured survey questionnaire to obtain data on the financing characteristics and government assistance for Islamic MFIs' clients. There were 289 clients from four Islamic MFIs in East Java, Indonesia. A random pilot test with a sample of 15 clients in East Java was conducted before administering the survey. Data were analysed using Tables, percentages and chi-square (χ^2) test at 5% and 1% level of significance.
