Correction of errors

Take time to carefully review your article. If you notice errors (typographical, grammatical, omissions, wrong character, author names etc..) in your publication, ensure that they are corrected within the next 5 days, before your manuscript is sent for long term preservation to several long term preservation bodies.

It is very important that errors identified be corrected promptly. Share this message with your co-authors to ensure that author names are free of errors and written in the order First Name - Middle Names(if any) - Last Name.

All corrections should be made before the final PDF is formatted. Some changes are not possible at this stage including changes in authors order, addition or subtraction of authors. Use the attached Correction Request Sheet to compile, organize and submit your request for corrections to the production team. The sheet is also available online at https://www.panafrican-med-journal.com/resources/Proof_Correction_Template_English.docx

If there are errors to correct, submit your completed Corrections Request Sheet through the online Proof Checking System by clicking on the link below.

If your manuscript does not require corrections, you still need to access the link below to approve this online version of your manuscript.

Dear yunias setiawati

Your submission was received by the editorial office of the journal and will soon be processed .

Summary of submission

Internet Gaming Disorder in an Adolescent During the COVID-19 Pandemic: A Case Report

Manuscript ID : 33941 - 89292022210211

Date submission started : 21 Feb 2022

Date submission ended : 21 Feb 2022

Authors : Novi Agung Rahmawati, Yunias Setiawati, I Gusti Ayu Indah Ardani, Ekachaeryanti Zain, Victor Pereira Sanchez

Submitted as : Case report

Keywords : Internet Gaming Disorder (IGD), Adolescent, Behavioral Addiction, Covid-19 (Health emergencies, Public health emergencies)

Journal : Pan African Medical Journal

Abstract

The internet has become an indispensable tool in people's daily lives during the COVID-19 pandemic. Internet and video game use are experiencing rapid growth among adolescent and adult populations as a major source of entertainment. However, excessive gaming may become an addiction and negatively impact mental health, entailing lower psychosocial well-being, poor social skills, and decreased academic achievement. We report the case of a 16-year-old student with a 'typical' pattern of internet gaming disorder (IGD) developed during the pandemic, which improved after weeks of treatment with pharmacotherapy and psychosocial interventions. The case highlights the need for mental health professionals to be aware of the psychopathology of IGD and the multimodal approaches to treat it.

Cover letter

Dear Editor-in-Chief Pan African Medical Journal We submit an article entitled "Internet Gaming Disorder in an Adolescent During the COVID-19 Pandemic: A Case Report" for publication in Pan African Medical Journal. The paper has been approved by all authors and they agreed to publish it in this journal. This paper is not a duplicate publication and not recognized for publication in another journal and submitted for Pan African Medical Journal only. We hope you accept our article for publication because this study reports the case of a 16-year-old student with a 'typical' pattern of internet gaming disorder (IGD) developed during the pandemic, which improved after weeks of treatment with pharmacotherapy and psychosocial interventions. What this study adds:

- Mental health professionals should be familiar with the psychopathology of IGD and internet addiction, and its consequential problems such as disrupted conduct, social withdrawal, aggression, and poor school performance.
- The combination of pharmacological treatment such as antidepressants (SSRI) and antipsychotics with individual and family-focused psychosocial interventions are useful in improving problematic behaviors.

Thank you, Yunias Setiawati Division of Child and Adolescence, Department of Psychiatry, Faculty of Medicine Universitas Airlangga, Surabaya, Indonesia
Dr. Soetomo General Academic Hospital Surabaya, Indonesia

Article Processing Charges : I will pay the Article Processing Charges of 180 USD

Justification :

We will get back to you as soon as possible by email to inform you on the status of your submission. Thank you fo considering the Pan African Medical Journal with your submission.
