

WORKS CITED

- Abani, Chris. The Igbo People and Its History. Retrieved March 20th, 2006, from (http://www.wsu.edu/~dee/IGBO PEOPLE.HTM).
- Achebe, Chinua. Home and Exile. New York: Anchor Books, 2001.
- Agrawal, Madhuri. Anthills of the Savannah. Retrieved January 4th, 2008.
(<http://www.slidingsands.com/2007/09/anthills-of-savannah.html>)
- Ashcroft Bill, Gareth Griffiths, Helen Tiffin. The Postcolonial Studies Reader.
New York & London: Rout ledge, 1995.
- Barker, Chris. Cultural Studies: Theory and Practice. London: Sage Publication
Ltd, 2000.
- Barry, Peter, Beginning Theory: Postcolonial Reading. Manchester: Manchester
University Press, 2002.
- Cary, Joyce. Mister Johnson. New York: New Directions, 1989.
- Gandhi, Leela. Postcolonial Theory: A Critical Introduction. New York:
Columbia University Press, 1998
- Grobman, Gary M. Stereotype, Discrimination, Racism. Online. May, 9th 2006.
<http://www.remember.org/guide/history.root.stereotypes.html>.
- Hall, Stuart. Representation Cultural Representation and Signifying Practices.
London: Sage Publication, Ltd. 1997.
- Hooker, Richard. Modernity. Retrieved October 20th, 2006, from (<http://www.wsu.edu/~dee/GLOSSARY/MODERN.HTM>).

Punch, Keith F. Introduction to Social Research. Trow Bridge, Wiltshire, Great Britain: Sage Publication. 1998.

Warren, Austin . Theory of Literature. London: Penguin Books. 1976.

... Arrow of God. Retrieved January 5th, 2008, from (http://www.wsu.edu/~dee/ Anchor Books.HTM).

... Home and Exile. Retrieved March 12th, 2006, from (http://www.wsu.edu/~dee/ Anchor Books.HTM).

SYNOPSIS

Home and Exile is a story about the notion of Igbo people. It describes the narrator's experience who explains his perception of his people and his homeland. The Igbo people are one of the major people of Africa who face a pressure in the society in the world. The Igbo people are classified as an uncivilized group of people who have no qualified standard of living. However, the pressure comes in the practice of their daily lives where the educational standard from the British people impose them that they are having fallen behind.

The story continues as the narrator explains the denial of those practices. He explains that the Igbo people have their own standard of living that can fulfill their daily activities. The narrator also encourages the Igbo people to struggle to gain a position in the society in the world. It can be in many ways, but he mentions the best ways to create a change is by being a writer because a writer has a chance to spread the information and facts, especially the thoughts of the Igbo people.

At last, the struggle has shown some significant change in the society, the narrator shows that he has had an experience in the change in the society. He explains that the British government has made a change in recognizing the Igbo people. The Igbo people are given a national identity in their passports. There are also many African writers who have published many books that can create a change in the way the people especially the Westerners think of the Africans.