Dear
Editor-Veterinary World

I have corrected my article according to comments from editorials and reviewers as follows

Answer to Editorial Comments:

- I have corrected it by adding a red font to the revised text.
- I have answered all the comments below point by point in the attached response letter and have revised to the appropriate paragraphs in the word file.
- I've included all author names, affiliations, ORCID and email addresses in a Word file revised to suit the Animal World format and style. I have checked the latest article from www.veterinaryworld.org for the format of this section.
- All reference no. in the text I have corrected it according to the style of the World of Veterinary Medicine.
- I have divided the introduction into 3 paragraphs. I have divided the introduction into 3 paragraphs, namely, 1. introduction 2. research significance and 3. research objectives.
- I've added the author's contribution (refer right below the conclusion section in the latest article from www.veterinaryworld.org for the format of this section)
- I have included an Acknowledgment and funding source for this research.
- I have corrected all journal names in references to standard journal abbreviations.

Answer to Reviewer 1:

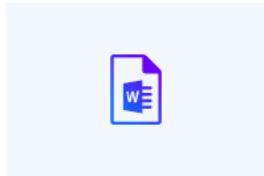

1. I have shown similarities or differences in isolates of new species of bacteria based on the BLAST program, it is by comparing the nucleotide sequences stored in the GenBank database through NCBI Blast. Next, we will examine isolates that can produce new compounds that can be used as drugs
2. I have changed and written according to scientific writing format

Answer to Reviewer 2:

I have corrected all of the grammar in sentences

Thank you very much for the information and cooperation regarding the revision of the article that I attached to this email.
