P.S. I Love You is a novel portrays the life of an Irish woman, Holly Kennedy. As a daughter of an Irish richman, she has grown in a big house in Portmarnock, near Dublin which has a beautiful sea scenery. She is the third child of Frank and Elizabeth Kennedy. Holly spends her childhood life mostly with Jack, her nearest brother. She loves to capture the sightseeing at the seashore. She sees the distinction between the job of father and mother. At junior high school, she has two bestfriends named Sharon and Denise. Thus, the life of Holly from her childhood until junior high school is filled with Jack's company.

At the age of fourteen, she meets with Gerry Clarke whose later being her husband. Actually, Holly is so introvert at that time, she feels so difficult in making a new relation with the others she does not know. Holly only has a few friends and it continues until she has grown up. The first Holly meets Gerry, her mind always relates him with her lovely brother, Jack because they are so alike; they like to joke, cute, patient, and kind. She, then, is making a relation based on her thoughts upon and added by extra push from her bestfriend, Sharon.

Holly marries Gerry at the age of twenty three, while Gerry is a year older. Her marriage is filled with huge love from them but problems are always coming into. Holly keeps the memory of how her parents' care reduces to her which remains in her thought. In the marriage life of Holly, she and Gerry are often happy but argumentations between them are often occurred too. The conflict arises when Gerry passed away. She becomes more difficult to deal with. She does not want to continue her outside life for over two months. Holly becomes easily cries woman who prefers to grieve at her inability to continue her life. By the love and care which are given by people around her, Holly tries to live her life without too much grieving on Gerry's death.
