

SYNOPSIS

David remembers his past experiences when he was child in Brooklyn. When he was five years old, his mother died. He was shocked and deeply sad. He often dreams and screams of his mother. There is a picture of his mother still hanging on the wall. David thinks that his mother is still presence in their house and she looks around the condition of her family in every moment. After his mother's death, David's father seldom speaks about his wife to him and moreover, his father states that he wants to remarry sooner. Almost every day David's father argues with Ellen because of his bad behavior such as coming home drinking and bringing women home. Ellen is afraid that father's bad behavior influence to David's development in adulthood life.

After David grows up in puberty, he meets with a boy named Joey in his summer holiday. He spends his holiday in Joey's house. They walk around the beach, and then watch movie together. After that, they go to sleep undressed. They talk each other and suddenly, Joey was bit by a bug. David tries to hold Joey's hand. They stare each other and then both start kissing and making love. The next day David left Joey's house, and he threats Joey, to feel like a real man.

David has bad relationship with his father. Here, his father cannot replace his mother's figure to fulfill his love desire and care him a lot. So, David experience kind of unharmonious family and he feel lonely in his house. His father does not give a good example to his son. David grows up to be adult. He was thirteen years old. His father said that all he wanted from David was being a real man. He hates his father after he knows his father willing. Later David drunk on the road and finally he got an accident. He was sent to the hospital. After returning home, his father forces David to go to college, but David denies it. He wants to get a job and then he decides to move and live in Paris.

In Paris, David meets with Hella in a bar St Germain des Pres. She is very elegant, tense and glittering. David likes her because he thinks that she will be fun to have fun with. After that, they make a relationship and David has purposed to marry her after she goes back from Spain for holiday. After a year in Paris, he calls Jacques, a gay businessman, to lend money in Guillaume's gay bar. There, they meet Giovanni, the new bartender in the gay bar. Meanwhile, David and Giovanni become friendship. Later, David drunk in the gay bar and Giovanni invites him to go to his room. They talk each other, and they feel comfortable of their relationship. Inside the Giovanni's room, Giovanni takes and pulls David down in bed and then they kiss each other and also make a love.

Later, Giovanni is fired by Guillaume. He kills Guillaume and he is discovered by the police. He will be executed sooner. After that, Hella and David move to the South of France. David feels guilty over with Giovanni's execution; he left Hella and goes to Nice for a few days. He looks for a prostitute woman named Sue and they had a sex. After that, he spends his time with a sailor. Finally, Hella finds him and discovers David's homosexuality, which she suspected all along. She decides to go back to the United States with sadness. In other side, David feels anxiety of his own guilt to Giovanni. He realizes that he really love him.