The case study is well written and presented the case of Neurologic Related Condition Deviated Metoclopramide-Induced Acute Dystonic of Oculogyric Crisis.

Minor comments:

Oculogyric Crisis-pls provide further info on the existing gold standard treatment and also the type of treatment given to this patient

Metoclopramide-Induced Acute Dystonic -the previously recorded ADR of a similar nature-pls expand on this section Malaysian woman? -why this is highlighted in the title-is it a genetic study? any genetic link? if not suggest to remove it

Reviewer 2 comments

This case study is interesting and highlighted the issue of ADR of metoclopramide. I have some minor comments:

- 1) the Naranjo ADR scale-has it been done?
- 2) How many dose of metoclopramide taken by the patient?
- 3) Is there any similar cases reported before?

- 4) Oculogyric Crisis-any ophthalmology referral given?
