Reviewer #1: The article is greatly improved since its earlier version. I recommend it for publication.

I admit that I retain certain reservations, but they are the reservations of an anthropologist confronting methods commonly used by linguists. That is, I am not convinced by any conclusions based on solicited responses rather than observations of actual behavior. Since linguists are comfortable with soliciting material for analysis, however, it would be churlish of me to object to the article on those grounds.

"CRITICISM IN THE JAVANESE AREK CULTURAL COMMUNITY: ITS EXPRESSION CONTEXT AND STRATEGY USE"

by Edy Jauhari; Djatkika Djatkika; Riyadi Santosa

Dear Dr. Jauhari,

Having finished my editing of your interesting and well-written article, I will send you (from my private email) the revision as dealt with by me as editor.

Mainly the editing had to do with the formatting of the article (esp. in the bibliography), and the ways of expressing your thoughts (which often were overly explicit and sometimes a bit repetitive). Some phraseology did not appear properly English, and I have corrected this (e.g. the use of 'prone' for inanimate phenomena).

Please have a look at the revised edition and check especially the format of the referees and the figures and tables (which I have imported from the supplementary file.)

Thank you for a valuable contribution; and please send me also your short biblio-biographical sketches (all authors) and the address of the corresponding author (postal & email).

With best regards

Jacob L.. Mey, Editor

"CRITICISM IN THE JAVANESE AREK CULTURAL COMMUNITY: ITS EXPRESSION CONTEXT AND STRATEGY USE"

by Edy Jauhari; Djatmika Djatmika; Riyadi Santosa

Dear Dr. Jauhari,

Thank you for your inquiry.

Since the second referee has not reacted to my invitation to review the article, I have put myself in the referee seat.

The article is accepted provided some editorial changes are made. Currently, I am in the process of making those changes (subject to your approval) and will send you the revised version shortly.

(Mostly, the changes have to do with formatting and excess wording; so far, no substantial changes had to be made).

Thanking you for your patience,

with best regards.
