Dear editor of the Veterinary World journal,

I am Heny Arwati, the corresponding author of the submitted article entitled:
"Acute and Sub-acute Toxicity Tests of Goat Bile in BALB/c Mice" (Ms.Nr. VETWORLD-2019-10-527).

My manuscript has now been reviewed, and I just realized that there is a mistake in the authorship. I have made a mistake in clicking the authorship during submission steps.

The first author should be my name, Heny Arwati, but I clicked the name of Windya Tri Hapsari. She was my student who helped me during research. So, this is not a fraud, because it is really my mistake.

I know the editors do not allow to change the authorship, however, this is really a mistake made by myself.

So, could you please give me advise on what should I do to change the first author's name?

Your advice is highly appreciated

Sincerely yours,

Heny

Dear Dr. Heny Arwati,

You can change the authors sequence by making a fresh declaration with signature of all authors and verified by head of the department. Also, you have to mention the reason for fresh declaration just after the signature line.

When you submit the fresh declaration, please put Cc to all authors. Please include new authors sequence at the time of submission of the revised manuscript Word/PDF file.
