Dear committee of JCC 2014

The attachment is our revised manuscript entitled “The Influence of Ascorbic Acid, Creatinine and Urea on the Analysis of Uric Acid in the Blood Serum by Stripping Voltammetry using Graphite Electrode”, and the following is our response to reviewer comments

1. We have revised our manuscript based on suggestions from reviewer
2. We still use mg/dL, the unit commonly used in the medical field, to express the concentration of serum components. While for the standard solution, we used $\mu\text{g/L}$ (ppb), which is a measurement range in voltammetry.

Hopefully I hear your response. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

Miratul Khasanah
