COMMENTS for Authors:

EDITORIAL COMMENTS:

- Highlight all corrections/additions in red color font in revised manuscript.
- Please answer all the comments below point-by-point in an accompanying response letter to your revised submission and include your responses at appropriate paragraphs in the revised word file.
- Include all authors name, affiliation, ORCID and email address in revised Word file as per format and style of Veterinary World. Please check latest article from www.veterinaryworld.org for format of this section.
- All reference no. in the text must be in continuous no. as per style of Veterinary World and amend the reference section accordingly if you have not done it.
- Please divide the introduction into 3 paragraphs if you have already not done. Introduction must be divided into 3 paragraphs i.e., 1. introduction 2. significance of the study and 3. aim of the study.
- Include authors' contributions (refer just below the conclusion section in latest article from www.veterinaryworld.org for format of this section) if you have not added.
- Include Acknowledgements along with source of fund for this study if you have not included.
- All journal names in references must be as per standard journal abbreviation.
- If you will not revise strictly as per suggestion then there will be chance of rejection. So, revise carefully. If you have any query then please email to Editor-in-Chief.

=> Reviewer # 1

Authors here demonstrate the potential of Petiveria alliacea leave extract on insulin receptor sensitivity through suppression of proinflammatory cytokines namely TNF- α and IL-6 in diabetic rats.

- The study is interesting but is missing essential experiments to support the conclusion claimed by the authors. The manuscript may be accepted after major revision.
- While they have tried to explain the possible mechanism of P. alliacea leaves extracts through reducing IL-6 and TNF- α levels via AMPK activation, presently there is no data to prove the same (the critical bridging link for the main goal).
- The authors have parallelly shown 3 interpretations namely P. alliacea leaves extracts can increase insulin sensitivity, decrease IL-6 and TNF- α levels, however the mechanistic explanation for these 3 results and an experimental validation of how these parameters do contribute towards alleviating inflammation in the streptozotocin-induced diabetic rat model is unexplained.
- Moreover, the other inflammatory mediators such as interleukin-8, intracellular adhesion molecule 1, vascular-cell adhesion molecule 1, and monocyte chemoattractant protein-1 are not explored at all.
- There are numerous typos persisting throughout the manuscript which needs attention.

=> Reviewer # 2

- English needs improvement.

Editor's comment:

Get professional copyediting from ENAGO or Editage [keep all corrections in track changes (language as well as editorial and reviewers) and paste the certificate in the revised word file] or ask Veterinary World in answer letter for copyediting service (with extra payment) as your manuscript needs extensive copyediting.
