Read the following text and choose the correct answer according to the text!Lucky George

"Today is going to be a lucky day for me," announced George Beckstone as he drank his first cup of coffee. "The first cup of coffee in the morning is always the best," he thought. "Everything is going to be fine."

His wife, Muriel, a fat woman with black curly hair and a round moonlike face, was frying eggs at the stove. "You are a fool," she said loudly, looking at the stove but talking to George just the same. "Just a superstitious old fool. The only reason you feel lucky is because it is Friday and you do not go to the office on Saturday." She turned around and glared at George. (5)

"You are happy because you think you are going to play golf all day with Willie," she shouted. "Well, let's get one thing straight. Tomorrow you are going to clean the basement first." She banged the eggs on the table and lit a cigarette. She blew smoke in George's face. (10)

George looked at the eggs and then at his wife. He did not like eggs very much especially the way Muriel cooked them, and he did not like cigarette smoke especially in the morning. But Muriel was different. A man likes some things and loves others. A man does not like some things, but other things he just hates. George hated Muriel. According to George, life with Muriel was not worth living. Today was going to be lucky-lucky for George. George was going to kill Muriel. (15)
