

SYNOPSIS

The play opened a prologue with the scene Alma and John, the main characters, ten years old children who was talking nearby an angel stone statue fountain. They are citizens of a little town named Glorious Hill. Alma is a daughter of a Reverend, while John is a son of a famous doctor. Alma Winemiller is nice and decent girl with an adult quality who was having a puppy love to John Buchanan, while John is only a naughty handsome boy who does not have a mother who made him does not know the meaning of love.

The next scene is depicting Alma and John in their twenties. Alma still loves John although she knows that he was notorious. On the same time John was having a relationship with Rosa Gonzales, a daughter of a casino owner. Alma's love to John was hardly opposed not only by her father but also by the society. It was the first love to Alma, because she never has a relationship with a man before since her mother mental illness at her youth.

The love relationship on them made them insisting one another philosophy about the body and soul. Alma on the soul side, and John on the other. After John's father death they found each other exchange one another philosophy. John because of his admiration to Alma dare not love her, tragically Alma because of her love to John voluntarily changes her philosophy. In spite of loving and marry Alma, John married to Nellie Ewell - Alma's pupil in singing lesson. Knowing that she was mislead into the worst decision Alma consciously compensate compensation by not return back to her old philosophical way of life, and deserting her duty and obligation as a minister daughter. She is not a lady anymore.
