ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Thanks to Allah Subhanawata'ala for His willingness to listen and grant my prayers. and for the so many troubles and obstacles given to me in working on this thesis.

Some people have given me uncountable contributions and there is nothing I could give but expression of thank to them, they are:

My cousin, Mas Iwan, who has given me assistance on computer matters. My best friends: Ismeianto, S.T., who has given me his books, listened to my stories, (and for the friendship), Budihardjo, S.T., who has allowed me to use his internet.

Drs. Jurianto, who has understood my condition and given me suggestions. All English department lecturers to whom I owe my knowledge. I am very grateful to all of them.

91' students: Witanto, Helen, Yogo, Samsul, Madah, Joko, Bambang, Hendro, Erna, Hening, Upik, Robby, and Andi, 92' students: Nana, Melly, Ratih, my "sister" Irma, who has been good friends.

Prof. Noam Chomsky from MIT, who has replied my e-mail and explained about his "context free grammar", and DR. S. Fitzpatrick from Queens University Belfast,

Northern Ireland who has given valuable informations through internet.

Anyone who has ever written a thesis-or is related to anyone who has-knows the amount of time involved in such a project. To my family who learned this firsthand, all I can say is : "To Dad, Mom, and Mbak Yanti, thanks for your tremendous support and indulgence."
