

The Influence of Biosecurity Management System to the Feasibility of Own Livestock Business and Partnership in Gondang Legi Malang

Meindya Agung Purwonegoro

ABSTRACT

The aim of research is to know: (1) biosecurity management system both independently and partnership, (2) feasibility analysis of broiler farming independently and partnership, (3) influence of biosecurity management system to broiler farming feasibility analysis independently and partnership This research is a descriptive research. Data were collected by questionnaire technique, interview technique and documentation. Determination of the number of 12 respondents based on the snowball sampling method. The results showed that: (1) Most of broiler breeders independently and partnership of Regency of Gondang Legi Malang Regency observed biosecurity system from isolation aspect, traffic control, maintenance system and sanitation system, (2) broiler farm in Gondang Legi Malang is effort which can be categorized as feasible to be carried out with the average BEP value of average BEP price, average B / C ratio, and average payback period. (3) There is influence of biosecurity system management to analysis of feasibility of independent broiler breeding business and partnership of Gondang Legi Malang sub-district such as cage, population density, food hygiene, poultry health program, other farm, handling of death. poultry, and handling of sick chickens on business feasibility analysis.

Key words : Biosecurity management, business analysis, Broiler farming in Gondang Legi Malang.