

ABSTRACT

CORRELATION BETWEEN ADDICTION OF ONLINE GAMES WITH ACHIEVEMENT MOTIVATION IN ADOLESCENTS

Correlational Study

By: Muhammad Daud Al Abror

Introduction: Adolescents with internet addiction tend to have low achievement motivation. they just play online games to become addicted. This research was aimed to Analyze the relationship between game addiction with achievement motivation in adolescents aged 15-20 years on the Ploso Baru, Tambak sari, Surabaya. Methods: Research uses correlation study, a study that discusses the degree of correlaty between variables, The target population of this study was teenagers aged 15-20 years who play online games 50 people. The questionnaire contains questions about online games addiction as much as 27 and achievement motivation as much as 25, The sampling technique used for this study was the total sampling technique in which the entire large population is reachable for use as a sample. Results: Spearman rank test showed that there was no correlaty online games addiction and achievement motivation, the sig. $p= 0,108 (>0,05)$ and Spearman correlation value of 0,230. Discussion: It can be concluded that the addiction of online games is not correlated with achievement motivation in adolescents.

Keywords: Adolescent, addiction of online games, Achievement motivation