

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

Information or news is one of the people's needs. Besides to enlarge knowledge for what is going on around, information or news will help people to fulfill their social needs. Media exists to provide that needs, from both broadcasted and printed media. There are many channels in television, and also newspapers which are printed in daily. Jawa Pos newspaper is one of the national newspapers which provides its reader news from local, national, and international. The existence of international news in Jawa Pos newspaper gave the writer chance to do internship there. Doing internship in Jawa Pos newspaper helps the writer to improve her ability in English especially in translation, gives the writer chance to apply her knowledge from her study, and also gains new experience in media field that the writer has been interested in.

The writer did her internship as an assistant journalist at International Division at Jawa Pos newspaper who is in charge of providing news from overseas. During the five weeks of her internship, the writer had learnt about how newspaper gets its international news, how the international journalist does their job, and how to provide good news to be delivered in public. The knowledge, which the writer gets from its study, helps a lot during the internship. Actually there are three main activities that the writer did in her internship. Those activities are orientation, searching news, and translating news.

In the orientation session, the writer gained much information such as the people who would be help her, the description of what she would do, and also the information about the news agencies which are subscribed by Jawa Pos. By knowing the people who would help her, the writer felt comfort to do her internship under their guidance. It also gave the writer chance to know new people and learn from them. The description of her main activities made the writer knew what she should or should not do.

The process of searching news gave the writer chance to be more aware of what is going on around her. As a journalist, they have to try selecting news by considering the aspects of making news become newsworthy. Besides that the writer learnt about how to search interesting, unique, and news which readers want to read.

The crucial activity of providing international news is translating the news from source language, which is in English, into Bahasa Indonesia. The writer got many experiences and new knowledge of how to do translation. Actually she has learnt it from her study, and the internship gave her a chance to apply her knowledge in the real workplace. After the internship finished, the writer feels that her ability in translation especially in media is getting better rather than in her study.

Doing internship is one of the graduating requirements. But besides that, the writer could learn and take advantage of what she has got from her study in the real workplace situation. Moreover, it was a good memory of the writer that she could be a part of the national newspaper like Jawa Pos, even though as an intern student and only in a month.
