ABSTRACT

Puji Rahayu, 111714253014, Influence of emotional intelligence, gratitude and peer social support on subjective well-being in street children in the Street Child Care Community (KPAJ) of Makassar, 2019

This research was conducted with the aim to determine the effect of emotional intelligence, gratitude and peer social support on subjective well-being in street children in the Street Child Care Community (KPAJ) of the city of Makassar.

This research method uses a quantitative approach and uses four measurement scales namely the emotional intelligence scale, the gratitude scale, the scale of peer social support, and the scale of subjective well-being. The analysis used is multiple regression analysis. The number of subjects in this study were 99 street children in the Makassar City KPAJ target area with a total population of 230 street children through purposive sampling techniques.

The results obtained indicate that the influence of emotional intelligence, gratitude, and peer social support has a concurrent influence on subjective well-being of street children in the Street Child Care Community.
